What are specialty medicines?

Specialty medicines are prescribed to treat many rare or less common chronic (long-term) conditions. Examples include multiple sclerosis, hemophilia, hepatitis C and rheumatoid arthritis.

In addition to being high-cost medicines, they may also:

- Be injected, infused or taken by mouth
- Have unique storage or shipping requirements
- Require careful adherence to treatment plans and support from your health care professionals
- Not be stocked at local retail pharmacies

Personalized service

Your care coordinator will get to know you personally, set up your deliveries, provide information on managing potential medicine side effects and check to see if your condition has changed before each refill.<sup>2</sup>

Special delivery

You choose where you want your specialty medicines and supplies delivered — anywhere in the United States.<sup>3</sup> Every specialty prescription we fill is packaged with care.

You'll also have 24-hour-a-day access<sup>4</sup> to a specialty pharmacist, when you need an answer right away.

Financial and claims support

Costs shouldn't come between you and the right medicine. Your care coordinator can direct you to financial assistance options if needed, help with insurance paperwork and even bill your health plan for you.
